

In parts of coastal Khulna in Bangladesh, low-budget projects to benefit people most affected by climate change are squandered while ornamental parks and new houses for local leaders pop up.